I am voiced by Tress MacNeille and I'm the mother of Principal Skinner and first appeared in the first season episode "The Crepes of Wrath" as an old woman who embarrassingly calls her son "Spanky". However, as episodes progressed, I turned bitter. I am very controlling of my son and often treat him as if he is a child. I hate Edna Krabappel due to my son's feelings for the other woman. I have married four times. Several Springfield residents (including the Simpsons) are afraid of me. When "the real Seymour Skinner" arrives in Springfield, I end up rejecting him in part because he stands up to me, but also because unlike Skinner/Tamzarian, my biological son is independent and doesn't need me anymore, while Skinner immediately reverts to a good-for-nothing without me.

My first name was revealed in the seventh season episode "Bart the Fink". Before that, I was known as "Mrs. Skinner". In the beginning of the series, the writers made several references to Seymour and my unhealthily close relationship as similar to that of Norman Bates and his mother. In "Boy Meets Curl", it is revealed that my resentment to Seymour may have begun even before my son was born — during the 1952 Summer Olympics in Helsinki, I competed in the pole vaulting event while 9-months pregnant. When Seymour makes his first kick, he hits the bar, thus, making me lose and subsequently crushing my dreams. However, this would contradict the earlier episode when it is revealed that Seymour is not my birth son. In "Grade School Confidential", it is revealed that I enjoy collecting pictures of cakes that I cut out of magazines, a hobby I began in 1941. I do not like to eat them. However, in the twenty sixth season episode "Sky Police" I mention that I have a brother Stevie.

I work as a waiter at The Happy Sumo, a Japanese restaurant in Springfield. I first appeared in the second season in "One Fish, Two Fish, Blowfish, Blue Fish". Actor George Takei originally voiced me in "One Fish, Two Fish, Blowfish, Blue Fish". Since my speaking role in "When Flanders Failed", Hank Azaria has voiced the character, doing an impression of Takei for the voice.

I (voiced by Winona Ryder, Pamela Hayden) am in Lisa's class but skipped a grade and have a lot in common with Lisa. I first appeared in "Lisa's Riva", in which Lisa feels threatened by my talents and abilities. During a school competition Lisa has Bart sabotage my Tell-Tale Heart diorama with a cow's heart in a box and hides the original diorama beneath a floorboard. Wracked with guilt, Lisa returns my real diorama. Lisa and I both lose to Ralph Wiggum and his Star Wars figurines. Afterwards, Lisa apologizes and the two make amends. I have had a few speaking roles after that and has been friends with Lisa, Janey, Sherri and Terri at the school and on the bus.

I (voiced by Dan Castellaneta) am a disgruntled, somewhat eccentric helicopter traffic reporter for Springfield's KBBL-TV (Channel 6). I dislike pompous anchorman Kent Brockman, with whom I often get into arguments on the air. Brockman once snarled that I was a "jackass", with me responding that I believe Kent's soul is "as black as the ace of spades". I sometimes attempt to join the action myself, such as my attempting to hit a fleeing Homer Simpson's car with a shoe in Children of a Lesser Clod. My appearance and name are inspired by Pulitzer winning journalist Ernie Pyle.

I'm a narcissistic Internet entrepreneur who is infatuated with Marge Simpson, my former high school classmate. I am voiced by Jon Lovitz, except for a brief appearance in "The Front" (1993), in which I was voiced by Dan Castellaneta. Animator David Silverman based my appearance and body language on a former high school classmate.

I first appear in "The Way We Was" (1991), in which I take a young Marge Bouvier to senior prom. When I try to grope her in my car, Marge rejects me and drives off, encountering Homer on her way home. In adulthood, I try repeatedly to coerce Marge into choosing me over Homer, with Patty's encouragement as she saw me more as the ideal husband for her sister.

In "Half-Decent Proposal" (2002), Marge learns that I am extremely wealthy, having made my fortune in computers by inventing an adapter that turns modem noises into easy-listening music, and she reluctantly accepts a $1 million offer to spend a weekend at my mansion to pay for an operation Homer needs to cure his extremely loud snoring. Homer assumes we are having an affair, but I admit that I could not win her over. I begin to acknowledge that my selfishness is to blame. In "The Ziff Who Came to Dinner" (2004), the Simpsons discover me hiding in their attic after I squandered my money and started an accounting scandal at my company, Ziff Corp. I manage to scapegoat Homer but I eventually confess my guilt to the authorities when Marge berates me for my poor character and she reveals that my own selfish behavior are the real reasons why no one likes me (when Marge angrily asked me why I thought I was despised, I thought for a moment and said, sincerely, "Anti-Semitism?"). After that, I am comforted by Selma; we spend the night together, and, as a result, and I turn myself in. I was last seen about to be assaulted by angry prisoners after I doused their cigarettes with a squirt bottle, and had not appeared in any canon episodes since.

In "Treehouse of Horror XXIII" (2012), Bart time-travels to 1974 and happens upon Marge, who is still a high school student. After he warns her not to marry Homer, Bart returns to 2012 and finds that Marge has married me, with Bart now named Bartie Ziff, and having inherited my curly hair. Marge leaves me after she instantly falls in love with a host of time-traveling Homers. She says seeing them made her realize she had married the wrong man..

Gabbo and I (both voiced by Hank Azaria) are a puppet and ventriloquist who start our own TV show that is in competition with Krusty the Clown's. The show is a huge hit that ruins Krusty's career, but Bart then ruins Gabbo's future by capturing me making a rude comment on TV. We are later reduced to low-paying work such as a show at an Indian casino. We mainly appeared in season four's "Krusty Gets Kancelled" but we also appeared in "Bart to the Future", "Homerazzi", "All About Lisa" and The Simpsons Movie.

I'm Bleeding Gums Murphy Hibbert (voiced by Ron Taylor and Daryl L. Coley). I'm a jazz musician, idol, and mentor of Lisa Simpson. My real first name has never been mentioned, though my claimed his nickname came from the fact I have never once been to a dentist. My significant roles were in the episodes "Moaning Lisa" and "Round Springfield", although I appear in other episodes such as "Bart the Daredevil" (where I am yellow), "Dancin' Homer", "Old Money", "Flaming Moe's", "Bart Gets an F", "Radio Bart", and "Lisa's Pony". In "Dancin' Homer", I was voiced by Daryl L. Coley. In "Round Springfield", it is revealed that at one point I have enjoyed a fairly successful career, releasing an album ("Sax on the Beach") and appearing on Steve Allen's The Tonight Show, as well as one of the Cosby children's four grandfathers on an episode of The Cosby Show; but quickly lost my money feeding my $1500-a-day habit of purchasing and smashing Fabergé eggs. I taught Lisa to display her emotions through music, prompting Lisa to hold me as an important figure in her life. My last appearance was in "Round Springfield", when, after Bart ends up in the hospital, Lisa wanders off to find me dying in a nearby ward. I explain about his life, family, and work to her, as well as giving her advice for her upcoming school performance, giving her my saxophone. When Lisa returns, she finds out that I died from circumstances which are never revealed. No one, except for Lisa, attends my funeral. Lisa realizes that despite being gone physically, I still am alive in her. It is strongly hinted that me and Doctor Hibbert are long-lost brothers, most notably by my quote: "I don't really have a family. All I had was a little brother who grew up to become a doctor. He used to laugh at the most inappropriate times." Hibbert laughs inappropriately (as he always does) and says, "Hey, I've got an older brother that I'll never see. He's a jazz musician or some such. Oh well, bye, bye." I am loosely based on Blind Willie Johnson, at whose feet I learned. The voice of me was provided by Ron Taylor, while my saxophone playing is provided by Dan Higgins. As a sign of respect for the character, I have been a fixture of the extended opening sequence of The Simpsons since the second season. Originally, even after my death, Bart would skateboard past him on the street. In "The Great Wife Hope", I am mentioned and supposedly, according to Carl, I am still alive, after Homer asks Carl if he knows Drederick Tatum. Carl takes offense, saying that just because I am African American, he does not know every other African-American in Springfield, of whom there are very few, anyway. Carl then says that he met Drederick Tatum while he was at a party with Dr. Hibbert at my house.

I'm a three-eyed orange fish featured primarily in "Two Cars in Every Garage and Three Eyes on Every Fish". Likely mutated by toxic waste from the Springfield Nuclear Power Plant pouring into the river, I became a major news story when I was caught by Bart Simpson. Mr. Burns defends me, arguing that my extra eye is merely the next step in evolution. Mr. Burns goes to the Simpsons' house for a meal to boost his race for governor. Marge, a supporter of Burns' opponent Mary Bailey, deliberately serves me for dinner. Mr. Burns spits the fish out and subsequently loses the election. I was briefly seen again in episodes "Homer's Odyssey" and "Raging Abe Simpson and His Grumbling Grandson in 'The Curse of the Flying Hellfish'". I also made a brief appearance in an underwater section of the tube-way Fry travels through in the pilot episode of the animated series Futurama, which was created by The Simpsons creator Matt Groening. I also appear in an episode of Futurama's seventh season titled T.: The Terrestrial; I am seen in a fish bowl on Jrrr's desk.

OVERVIEW	I am Mr. Burns' Lawyer also known as "The Blue- Haired Lawyer" (voiced by Dan Castellaneta) . I am Springfield's most prominent and powerful lawyer. I first appeared in the second season episode "Bart Gets Hit by a Car". I am known for my blue hair and nasal New York accent. I also occasionally appear to serve as a prosecutor. Unlike Lionel Hutz or Gil Gunderson, I am competent, although not necessarily ethical. I have served as Mr. Burns' head lawyer, helping him out with threats of the Power Plant closing down and of Burns losing his money. I am a member of the Springfield Republican Party. I (voiced by Tress MacNeille) am the wife of Cletus Spuckler. Cletus and I are depicted as stereotypical yokels. Throughout the series, outlandish theories that we are siblings, boyfriend and girlfriend, mother and son, or father and daughter, have been suggested, with Cletus simply stating "they're all kinds of things". In one episode, I'm apparently the daughter of Cletus and an alien. I ahve suffered from rabies, and admitted to being illiterate. More recently, I'm shown fighting in the Iraq War. I come back revealing Cletus is the father of only two of the kids, casting doubt over the paternity of all the other children. Assuming that all of the children believed to be Cletus' are also mine, I have 45 specifically named children. Cletus and I were married by Homer during his brief stint as a minister. On April 27, 2008, more is revealed about Cletus and I in an episode entitled "Apocalypse Cow"; I have married Cletus at the age of 13, having been married four times previously. I have had several low-level jobs, such as working for Dairy Queen, a strip club, and an infantryman for the U.S Army. I've also been in prison, where I developed a liking for indoor plumbing which the Spuckler homestead lacks.

OVERVIEW

I (initially voiced by Dan Castellaneta and later by Hank Azaria) am the star of a Mexican Spanish-language television sitcom on Channel Ocho, in which I dress in a bumblebee costume and perform slapstick comedy. In the episode "Team Homer", my bowling shirt bears the name "Pedro", though I'm informally referred to as "Chespirito". I work at the same studio as Kent Brockman. My first appearance was in "Itchy & Scratchy: The Movie". I'm rarely seen to take off my costume, even when by myself; the sole exception is the episode "22 Short Films About Springfield", in which my private life is shown. In this short segment, I'm portrayed as innately clumsy rather than simply acting as such.

In general, I only speak in simple, over-enunciated (and inaccurate) Spanish sentences. My catchphrases of choice are typically "Ay, ay, ay, no me gusta!" ("I don't like it!"), "Ay, ay, ay, no es bueno!" ("That's not good!") and "Ay, Dios no me ama!" ("God doesn't love me!"). Quite commonly, my phrases will be intentionally sloppy Spanish. For example, in the episode "22 Short Films About Springfield", there are several words used that are not real (such as "wudpequero" for "woodpecker", rather than the correct pajaro carpintero). The crude Spanish is used so that English-speaking viewers would still understand what was being said. On occasions, I also speak English, such as briefly in "Mr. Spritz Goes to Washington". In "Bart Gets Famous", I anchored the news with an articulate English accent, filling in for Kent Brockman, who would not report the news because he did not get his cheese Danish, which Bart stole to give to Krusty.

I'm a caricature parody of El Chapulin Colorado, a character created and portrayed by Mexican television comedian Roberto Gómez Bolaños (a.k.a. "Chespirito"), and my show consists of simple skits, often involving heavy slapstick. The staff have said that whenever they watched Univision, this character was "always on", thus they created me, who is also always on the air when the Spanish-language channel is depicted. My costume was based on one used in the Saturday Night Live sketch "Killer Bees".

In 2003, Azaria won a Primetime Emmy Award for Outstanding Voice-Over Performance for voicing me, and various other characters.

I (voiced by Tom Poston) am the mascot for Capital City. My appearance seems to have been inspired by the mascot of the Philadelphia Phillies baseball team, the Phillie Phanatic. My costume is a creature with a baseball body, with a blue Capital City T-shirt, yellow arms and legs, a long flat-ended nose, tufts of fur at the side, a red hat with two springs, two costume eyes that look in either direction, and my eyes that peek outside the mouth. I first appeared in the episode "Dancin' Homer" and shared the stage with Homer. After that, I am absent until Homer to the Max, where I walks past the Simpsons window alongside Mr Largo when Lisa talks about TV shows rewriting or dropping characters that appear early on. In "Bart vs. Lisa vs. the Third Grade", I represent Capital City in the state legislature; I spent $80 million out of my own pocket to win the seat, and now am leading an effort to change the state's embarrassing, Confederate-symbol centered state flag. With the death of Tom Poston in 2007, I was reduced to making minor background appearances and usual honking sounds, and have not spoken since "Bart and Lisa vs. the Third Grade".

My name is Cecil Underdunk Terwilliger (voiced by David Hyde Pierce). I'm the younger brother of Robert Underdunk Terwilliger, a.k.a. Sideshow Bob. My first appearance was in the season 8 episode "Brother from Another Series", where it was revealed that Bob only got the job as Krusty's sideshow ten years ago because I, who had always wanted to be a children's entertainer, failed my audition. I later became Springfield's "Chief Hydrological and Hydrodynamical Engineer" although I planned to blow up the new Hydroelectric dam I was building, so that nobody would know how cheaply it was made. I kept most of the building money for myself, making it look as if it was my brother.

However, Sideshow Bob, Lisa and Bart worked together to successfully foil me. Eventually, after losing the money, I attempted to kill Bart which Bob never could, but ironically, this was foiled by Bob himself. My second appearance was in the season 19 episode "Funeral for a Fiend", where, following Robert's death, I convinced Bart to go to his cremation. It turned out, though, that Sideshow Bob faked the whole thing in another elaborate plot to kill Bart. I'm voiced by David Hyde Pierce, who also plays the younger brother of Sideshow Bob's voice actor Kelsey Grammer in Frasier. My mannerisms and my relationship with my brother are also loosely based on Niles and Frasier's relationship in Frasier. Later, I appear in "O Brother, Where Bart Thou?".

I (voiced by Dan Castellaneta) am a professional stunt devil who appeared more in the early days of the show rather than the newer episodes. I first appeared in "Bart the Daredevil" which featured me in more scenes than other episodes. I later appeared in "I Married Marge", "Selma's Choice", and "Viva Ned Flanders". I was most recently featured when Krusty was flicking channels on my TV in "Today I Am a Clown". I also appears in Lisa's lecture about Lake Springfield in The Simpsons Movie sitting in the audience. My stunts often end in disaster, such as in "Viva Ned Flanders", and "Bart the Daredevil", where I state that I have broken every bone in my body after a failed stunt. My signature bike is the Suicycle and I have my own action figure complete with an ambulance.

We, Cesar (voiced by Harry Shearer & Hank Azaria) and Ugolin (voiced by Dan Castellaneta), are a nephew & uncle pair of stereotypical Frenchmen who in "The Crepes of Wrath" make Bart a slave to our winery "Chateau Maison" and put anti-freeze in our wine. In "Lisa the Greek" we watch TV in our apartment & in "To Courier with Love" we are leather makers who try to kill an endangered blue snake that Homer was supposed to send us to pay for a trip to France, we try to capture it on our own & fail.

I (voiced by Dan Castellaneta) am a gym instructor who coached Lisa in the season 13 episode "Little Girl in the Big Ten". I have anger problems and later make brief appearances, usually in mobs. Springfield Elementary gym teacher Brunella Pommelhorst mentions that I defected into East Germany from the West.

Today we played a game as old as pain itself,
BOMBARDMENT.
The rules? DUCK OR DIE!

I (Hank Azaria) am the new gym teacher at Springfield Elementary School following Miss Pummelhorst's departure in order to have a sex-change operation. I am obsessed with the game bombardment and play it by throwing balls at kids relentlessly. I can be seen in season 20's "How the Test Was Won" training the students for their standardized tests and hurl rubber balls at those who give wrong answers and have since made minor cameos in later episodes. I have a wife, daughter, and son.
